WITHOUT THE THUNDERBIRDS, WILL CROWDS STILL TURN OUT FOR AIR & WATER SHOW?

Chicago Tribune

Vintage aircraft and elite parachutists will slice through the skies above North Avenue Beach next weekend during the Chicago Air & Water Show, but it's not enough for Chris Connelly.

Without military headliners like the Air Force Thunderbirds roaring through the air, the father of two says making the trip from Palatine isn't worth it.

"There's something more exciting about the military jets. They're bigger, they're louder, they're faster," said Connelly, 50. "It's more of the speed. You can't really get that with the civilian acts."

The military grounded flyovers at special events and demonstration teams at air shows across the country after federal budget cuts from sequestration took effect in March.

That has caused a major headache for air show organizers, many of whom have relied on a military presence—from booming jets to displays—to provide variety and entertainment that will draw large crowds. Without the military headliners, some air shows have canceled while others reported fewer attendees or a less enthusiastic crowd.

The cancellation of the Thunderbirds, a precision flight team, forced the Chicago Air & Water Show to book six new acts as a way to persuade lakefront visitors to come back. While some civilian-owned jets and former military planes will be a part of this year's show, there isn't an expectation of the same panache that the Thunderbirds and the Navy Blue Angels bring. The two alternate performing in Chicago.

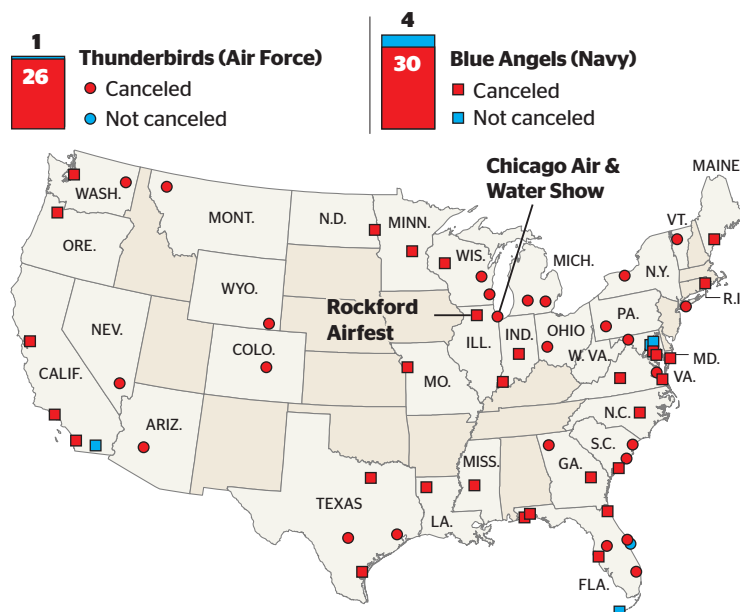

Most air shows are going through trial and error as organizers figure out what kinds of civilian acts can successfully take the military's place, said John Cudahy, president of the International Council of Air Shows. What they learn this year will be especially important because it's unclear whether the Thunderbirds will return to the air show circuit next year. The Blue Angels are scheduled to resume their appearances in 2014, the Navy said.

"The air show industry is really dealing with unprecedented times," Cudahy said. "We've been sort of on a ... diet on how to run shows without any military at all."

DID YOU KNOW?

Air shows are charged a fee for the Thunderbirds or Blue Angels to perform, but the charge doesn't cover everything. The military picks up the pilot training and travel expenses, spokeswoman for the Air Force and Navy said.

Everyone gets a dating site

Anthony Roberts

Online dating has moved from taboo to go-to for most people. Still, there are some areas of this world that can leave you speechless. The most recent that was brought to my attention: Gluten FreeSingles.com. The site promises members they "never have to feel alone, awkward or a burden because you are gluten-free."

Coming across this site (thanks to a tweet from @redyechicago, as a matter of fact) was a wake-up call. I realized there's a world of daters who are not being catered to out there. Because I'm a fan of love, I'm suggesting a list of sites that aren't currently up and running, but should be, where everyone can find his or her perfect partner.

IBiteMyNails.com

Nail-biting has been the deal-breaker for too many relationships. The annoying crunch of teeth on fingernails while you're trying to read, the wayward nail that gets lost in the bed sheets and cuts you like a machete — this can spell disaster for your love life. But fear not, IBiteMyNails.com is the solution. Meet other nail-noshers, share cuticle tips and be around others who randomly and uncontrollably put their fingers in their mouths while on the train.

IOnlyWearBlack.com

This site isn't just for the goth and emo crowd. There are scores of singles who actually hate colors and do anything they can to avoid them. With IOnlyWearBlack.com, you can link up with other people who despise the shades of the rainbow and never have to figure out which hue they're wearing to the party. Swap tips on how to tell dark black from midnight black and even share clothes. Here, you can truly find your soul mate.

ExtraBuddies.com

This one is for former introverts who are now extroverts. The problem is they don't have anyone to do super-fun and adventurous extroverted activities with because they don't have any friends from the days when they were introverts. ExtraBuddies.com will match you up with other newly converted outgoing singles who just want to finally have a social life, because we all know that shedding those shut-in years can be tough.

AnnoyingVoices.com

Have you ever dated someone who bursts out with cartoonish voices you don't understand? Do they go octaves higher than you ever could or whine like Fran Drescher? Maybe you can't understand them, but there are people who can. AnnoyingVoices.com will pair singles with others who find joy in chalkboard-screetchingly irritating voices. They also offer free voice-over training in the event that you'd like to capitalize on your annoying talent and find a match in the process.

AfraidOfFun.com

Wet blankets, have I got a treat for you! The Debbie Downer crowd can feel right at home with this great little gem of a site. You can meet other fun-hating, woe-is-me singles and have the worst times of your life together. It's an all-encompassing site, with a place for worrywarts and skeptics alike. All those who loathe having a good time, you want to log on right now. There are scores of people just like you, waiting to complain their lives away among others who understand exactly where you are coming from.

WHY HAVEN'T PEOPLE WITH SHOULDER PAIN BEEN TOLD THESE FACTS?

If you're over the age of 30 and have rotator cuff problems, frozen shoulder, or arthritis, there is hope.

One local doctor is helping patients increase shoulder strength, improve motion, and eliminate shoulder pain.

Finally, you can be pain free again – even if you've got the most excruciating shoulder pain you have ever felt.

Does your shoulder pain build up when you move it wrong or is it a sudden sharp pain shooting from your neck into your arm? Do you have difficulty just washing your hair or even scratching your back? Have you had to give up golf because of your shoulder pain? Nothing's worse than feeling great mentally, but physically feeling held back from life because your shoulder hurts and the pain just won't go away! My name is Dr. Paul Ruzila, owner of Chicago Chiropractic & Wellness. Over the past years, since we've opened the doors, we've seen many people with shoulder pain, frozen shoulder and rotator cuff problems leave the office pain free.

Here Are Some of Our Patients' Results

Finally, You Have An Option Other Than Drugs or Surgery

New research in a treatment called low level laser therapy, or Cold Laser, is having a profound effect on patients suffering with pain. Unlike the cutting type of laser seen in movies and used in medical procedures, Cold Laser penetrates the surface of the skin with no heating effect or damage.

Cold Laser therapy has been tested for 40 years, had over 2000 papers published on it, and been shown to aid in damaged tissue regeneration, decrease inflammation, relieve pain and boost the immune system. This means that there is a good chance Cold Laser therapy could be your pain solution, allowing you to live a more active lifestyle.

Professional athletes like Tiger Woods and team members of the New England Patriots rely upon cold laser therapy to treat the sports-related injuries. These guys use the Cold Laser for one reason only....

It Promotes Rapid Healing Of The Injured Tissues

Before the FDA would clear Cold Laser for human use, they wanted to see proof that it worked. This led to two landmark studies.

The first study showed that patients who had Cold Laser therapy had 53% better improvement than those who had a placebo. The second study showed patients who used the laser therapy had less pain and more range of motion days after treatment. If Cold Laser can help these patients, it can help you too.

Pain Pills Could Be Making Your Shoulder Worse

If you're taking pain pills for your shoulder, you are likely making your problem worse. Pain pills, even over-the-counter medications, just mask the problem, and don't fix your shoulder.

Pain is your body's warning sign telling you to take it easy. If you mask the pain with pills, you are likely to do things that can prevent your shoulder from healing – maybe even damage it further. Not to mention many of the pain medications available are quite addictive and have drastic side effects.

Do You Have Any of the Following Conditions?

- Frozen shoulder – one of the worst maladies known to man (and women!)
- Adhesive capsulitis
- Rotator cuff injuries
- Arthritis
- Bursitis
- Tendonitis
- Muscle weakness
- Sharp, radiating pain
- Numbness and tingling

Why Surgery May Not Be Your Only Option

We certainly can't say for sure until we meet you, but surgery may not be your only option. If you go through with surgery, you're looking at time off from work, weeks to months of rehab, and quite a bit of expense. Why not exhaust all natural, non-invasive options before considering more drastic measures?

Shoulder Pain Is Not Just 'Old Age'

No question... if you are having shoulder pain then something is wrong. It's not normal aging to hurt all the time. Pain in your shoulder isn't just a 'sign of old age', if that was true all 360 joints in your body would hurt since you're whole body is the same age.

Pain is your body's warning sign telling you something is wrong. Finding the problem and fixing it has got to be a top priority!

Have A Doctor Evaluate Your Shoulder For Only $35

Just call before August 26, 2013 and here's what you'll get...

- An in-depth consultation about your shoulder where we will listen...really listen.
- A complete nerve, muscle and spinal exam to find the "cause" of your problem.
- A full set of specialized x-rays to look for joint degeneration (arthritis).
- A thorough analysis of your exam and x-ray findings so we can fix the problem.

We'll answer all your most probing question about our pain free shoulder evaluation and what it can do for you. The appointment will not take long at all and you won't be sitting in a waiting room all day either. The normal price for this type of evaluation, including x-rays, is $450, so you're saving a considerable amount.

To take us up on this special offer, you must call 312-212-1150 before August 26, 2013. Call and tell the receptionist you'd like to come in for the Special Shoulder Evaluation.

Look, you have very little to risk and a lot to gain. Call today and we can get started with your consultation, exam and x-rays as soon as there's an opening in the schedule. Our office is located at 850 S. Wabash Ave., Ste. 290, in Chicago, IL.

PARKS AND SPECULATION

Revamp of secret space on Northwest Side has some smiling—some, not so much

By Tracy Swartz | REDEYE

Call it the 606. Call it the Bloomingdale Trail. Just call it ready for construction.

The 606 is the name recently bestowed to a project to convert an abandoned elevated railroad track that runs through Northwest Side neighborhoods from Bucktown to Humboldt Park. The three-mile trail, once a space for freight train traffic, is scheduled to undergo a major renovation starting this month.

The face-lift will transform the trail, now a rocky path that's closed to pedestrian traffic—though runners and dog walkers trespass onto the trail through holes cut in fences along the path.

When it's complete, the 606 will be a paved path alongside five parks with user access. Other features include a skate park and an observatory.

The project, more than a decade in the making, is similar to the High Line, a public park built on an elevated rail line in Manhattan.

Over the years, advocates have debated over what the Bloomingdale Trail should look like and what features it should have. Most recently, the city decided to call the project the 606 in reference to the first three digits of Chicago's ZIP code.

The city says the 606 name ties together Chicago neighborhoods, as the finished trail will, but not everyone likes it. Some path users say they'll continue to call it the Bloomingdale Trail.

The project is estimated to cost $91 million, which will come from grants and private fundraising. The first phase is expected to be completed by fall 2014.

In the meantime, RedEye talked to runners, business- and homeowners and photographers who currently use the trail between Ridgeway and Ashland avenues about where it is now and where they hope it will go.

TSWARTZ@TRIBUNE.COM | @TRACYSWARTZ

MARC MORAN

Tries to be a gentleman everywhere in Chicago—except for the 606

The trail is the only place he feels comfortable taking off his shirt while running west.

"As a guy, I think it's a little inappropriate when you're running in the streets or on the sidewalks without a shirt. I was always taught in high school that it's never really a gentleman's thing to do—take your shirt off in public," said Moran, 30.

Moran said he runs there a few times during the week.

"It's not anything like running on the sidewalk or running on the roads," Moran said of the trail's rocky and sometimes glass-laden surface.

He said he rarely runs into more than a handful of people on the trail, which he knows will change next year. He realizes his shirtless sanctuary may become overrun with traffic.

Still, he believes the changes to the 606 will add value to his neighborhood (Bucktown)—even though he may not be a trail neighbor for much longer. The apartment he is renting is being torn down in favor of luxury condos, and he has to vacate this summer.

"I want to stay close by," Moran said. "The trail is only making [Bucktown] more of an appealing place to be."

LENNY GILMORE/REDEYE

DAVID SCHALLIOL

Doesn't live anywhere near the 606—yet he knows every inch of the trail

Since 2009, the Hyde Park resident has been photographing the 606 for two to four hours at a time, typically two to three times a month. His goal?

"To provide a portrait of what life is like on the Bloomingdale Trail before everything changes," said Schalliol, 36. "I'm getting a sense of how the place is now before it is radically transformed."

At first, Schalliol started to document the trail by bicycle, but then he decided "maybe the best way was to slow down and take it in."

Now he typically walks the trail. Sometimes he brings a ladder to get a better view. Usually he tries to contrast his hours to capture the trail in varying sunlight.

"I really came to understand the different parts of the trail during different parts of the day," Schalliol said.

His two favorite parts of the trail are an area near Whipple Street in Logan Square by Julia de Burgos Park and just west of the "L" overpass by Milwaukee Avenue, which he said reflects a "special, urban feel."

His 606 photographs, of which he has thousands, have been used in the exhibit "Reframing Ruin: A Prelude to the Bloomingdale Trail," which is presented by the Friends of Bloomingdale Trail community group, formed a decade ago to advocate for an elevated park, and the Trust for Public Land.

The pictures are on display through Aug. 22 at the Center for Neighborhood Technology Energy, 1741 N. Western Ave.

"It is important to document what's going on in this place," Schalliol said. "It is worth spending the time and effort and energy."

When Knoerle first moved off the 606 with his wife, Judie, in 1999, freight trains were still traveling the trail.

Now Knoerle's neighboring Walsh Park may feature a concrete skateboard space.

"It's going to be insane," Knoerle said.

"We've been blessed to have a very quiet block here, and that's going to change."

Though he believes the project will increase his property value, and he enjoys occasionally walking the trail, he has concerns that crime and traffic will increase.

Beth White, the Chicago-area office director for the Trust for Public Land, said the concrete space in Walsh Park won't just be for skateboarders, but rather a "wheel-friendly space" that can be used for concerts and plays. People in wheelchairs will be able to utilize it as well.

"It's going to be a far safer space and actually a more quiet space than what is there now," White said.

Knoerle said in recent years, trailgoers have thrown rocks at car windows and tagged walls of homes adjacent to the 606. Knoerle said he's asked for an increase in bike patrols of the area. A Chicago police spokesman said the trail sees very little crime and police regularly patrol the area.

Knoerle's now worried that the proposed changes would significantly increase the amount of traffic to his block. Knoerle said he's gathering petition signatures so the Trust could rethink the skate park for Walsh Park, which is expected to be the largest of the five access parks. "It will be like living along the bike trail on the beach," Knoerle said. "It doesn't seem a pleasant prospect."

Author of the American Spy Trilogy, a series of World War II-era novels, but his housing situation may be more dramatic

JOHN KNOERLE

ALEX RODRIGUEZ

Co-owner of Rockstar Pets, who said the upgrades to the 606 could be a boon for business, or they could be, well, ruff

More dog walkers on the 606 could mean free advertising for the Logan Square pet boarding and day care facility, just west of the trail, off Bloomingdale Avenue. Already from the 606, users can see 40 to 50 Rockstar dogs playing in the company's backyard at any given time, Rodriguez said.

But more trailgoers could also mean more people who try to call out or whistle to the dogs playing in the yard. That could cause the dogs to bark incessantly, which could lead to noise complaints from neighbors, Rodriguez said.

"If [trailgoers] try to get our dogs' attention, it's going to cause a problem with our dogs. ... It just gets loud and noisy."

—Alex Rodriguez

Rodriguez, 41, said he's contacted the Trust for Public Land, a national land conservation organization hired by the city to manage the 606 project, about installing a fence near his business to shield the dogs, but he hasn't heard back about his idea.

Beth White, the Chicago-area office director for the Trust, said, "We've been taking a look at all the solutions. There are a lot of details to work out along the three miles."

ON THE MAP The 606 project will cost an estimated $91 million, coming from grants and private donations.

SPEEDERS BEWARE

CITY STANDS TO MAKE MILLIONS ON NEW CAMERAS

Chicago Tribune

As Mayor Emanuel rolls out his long-delayed speed camera plan, new numbers his office released suggest that drivers who speed in Chicago could rack up way more in fines than a cash-starved City Hall initially projected.

The mayor had hoped to bring in $30 million this year. But results from a monthlong test of the automated camera system indicate the city could reap well into the hundreds of millions of dollars in the program's first year.

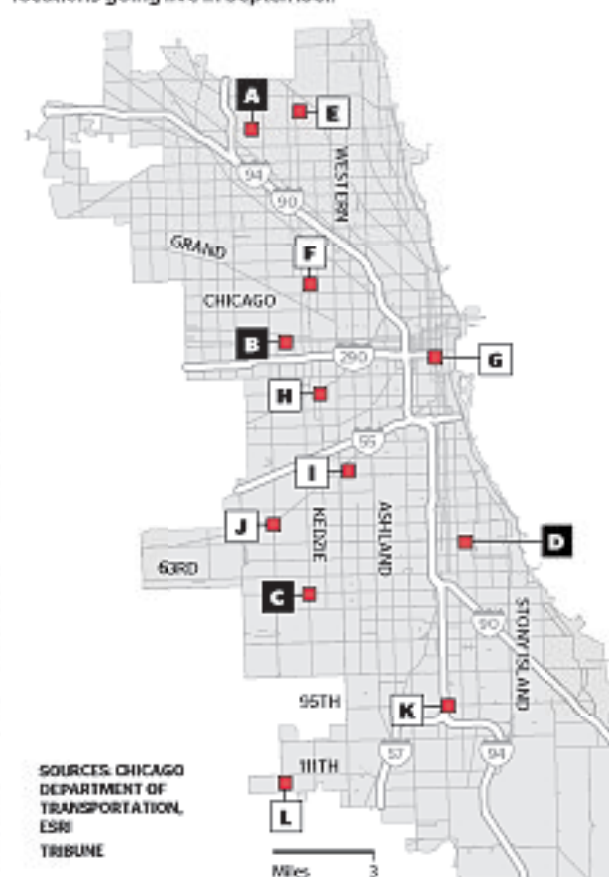

City transportation officials argue that estimate is overblown, but the test-period statistics the mayor's office released Friday reinvigorated critics who argue that the program is more of a cash grab than the child safety measure Emanuel sold it as.

The look at the potential impact on drivers comes as the city prepares to install the first cameras at four neighborhood parks Monday. An additional eight locations, including three near schools, are scheduled for next month.

As the city announced the camera work would begin, it released figures that provide the only real insight so far into the magnitude of a program that will hit motorists in their wallets for at least the next five years. During a December trial, the two companies vying for the contract clocked more than 93,000 speeders at four locations. The number of potential citations came as a surprise to even the city's speed camera operator.

"I think everyone was shocked at the numbers," said Charles Territo, a spokesman for American Traffic Solutions. "It became very obvious there is a speeding problem in school and park zones in the city of Chicago."

Had tickets been issued for all of those test-period violations, the city could have collected about $4.7 million in ticket revenue in a single month.

The city plans to have 50 camera locations up and running by year's end. If each of those locations sticks to the pattern the test cameras found, the city could rake in hundreds of millions of dollars a year.

Here's the math: Take the average of nearly $1.2 million per month at each location and multiply it by 12 months and 50 locations. The windfall doesn't end there—state law allows Emanuel to install cameras at up to 300 locations in specially designated school and park zones. City transportation officials put estimated first-year revenues at $40 million to $60 million, arguing that several factors will cut down on the number of tickets issued.

For starters, they argue that it's incorrect to estimate revenues based on the test program. They suggest the money will never reach into the hundreds of millions of dollars because of a number of factors. The most important: the fast learning curve of Chicago drivers.

In addition, about 10 percent of the recorded violations are typically not enforceable for numerous reasons—the speeders were emergency vehicles, the license tags were obscured or there's no child in the photo.

Beyond that, the city typically collects only 70 percent of the money from tickets that are issued because some drivers simply don't pay.

No bail for suspect in Facebook murder

MIAMI The Florida man who confessed to fatally shooting his wife and posted a grisly picture of her bloodied corpse on Facebook was ordered held without bail Friday after he was arrested on a murder charge.

Derek Medina

Derek Medina, shackled and wearing a short-sleeved green prison outfit, appeared before Miami Judge Maria Elena Verde by video link a day after the death of his wife, Jennifer Alfonso.

He was ordered held without bond pending his arraignment in 21 days, and could face a death sentence if he is convicted of first degree murder.

Medina, 31, gained notoriety on Thursday when he wrote in a Facebook posting that he had just shot and killed 26-year-old Alfonso because she was punching and physically abusing him. The posting was accompanied by a photo of her lifeless body on the floor.

Medina wrote on Facebook, "I'm going to prison or death sentence for killing my wife. Love you guys, Miss you guys ... My wife was punching me, and I am not going to stand any more with the abuse so I did what I did. I hope u understand me."

The author of six online books on topics that include marriage counseling, Medina had been employed as a front desk supervisor on the overnight shift at a luxury Miami-area condominium.

Detective Javier Baez of the Miami-Dade Police Department, confirmed the authenticity of Medina's Facebook posting, which remained public for hours before it was removed late Thursday.

The couple married in 2010, divorced in early 2012, then remarried a few months later. Medina's father was quoted by local media as saying the relationship had always been difficult.

Teen rescued in Idaho woods

A California teenager rescued from the Idaho wilderness after an FBI agent shot and killed her suspected abductor was expected to be reunited with her father on Sunday, authorities said. Hannah Anderson, 16, was airlifted on Saturday evening from an alpine lake in west central Idaho after a rescue in rough terrain.

Snowden's father heading to Russia

The father of Edward Snowden, the fugitive former U.S. spy agency contractor, has received a Russian visa and will travel there shortly to see his son, he and his lawyer said Sunday. The younger Snowden was stuck at a Moscow airport for more than five weeks before Russia granted him a year's asylum on Aug. 1.

The fish are biting ... testicles

Male skinny-dippers in Scandinavia are being warned about a fish infamous for munching on testicles. The Pacu, native to South America, was found by a fisherman in the Danish/Swedish strait of Oresund, according to experts at the Natural History Museum of Denmark.

Luvabulls tryouts at the United Center
BRITTANY SOWACKE/REDEYE

Making the Bulls dance team takes persistence—and strong opinions

By Evan F. Moore | FOR REDEYE

When Michelle Harris, the Bulls' director of entertainment, has the floor, she means business.

"Buckle up and be ready," Harris told the estimated 225 women who came to the United Center on Saturday in hopes of becoming a member of the Luvabulls.

They hail from different backgrounds—teacher, account executive and personal trainer, to name a few. But they all have one goal: to land one of the 20 spots on the Bulls' dance team, which is in its 35th season. The first rounds of cuts were made this weekend, and the squad will be finalized later this week.

Those who make the team can expect an amped-up version of the Luvabulls.

"We're upping the ante," Harris said. "Creating more costumes. We're getting new choreography. We're taking the Luvabulls to the next level."

During auditions, RedEye talked to hopefuls about which Bulls player they'd want on their team, who in the NBA annoys them and advice for D-Rose.

EVAN F. MOORE IS A REDEYE SPECIAL CONTRIBUTOR.

Which Bulls player would make a great Luvabull?

“ [Joakim] Noah, because he can flick it. He can work the hair.”

—Mary Wright, 24, Roseland

“Carlos Boozer. He has a lot of energy for the game. He's very passionate about the game. To be a Luvabull, you have to have those characteristics.”

—Kennella Boyle, 25, West Side

“Joakim Noah. He seems like he has a good personality and he has a sense of humor.”

—Aris Brown, 25, North Kenwood

Any advice for Derrick Rose as he returns from his injury?

“Focus on the game and don't stare at those Luvabulls girls.”

—Alejandra Hernandez, 28, Lakeview

“He knows his job. What to do. He's a terrific athlete. He'll come back as strong as he was before.”

—Jackie Graney, 25, Chicago, Luvabull for two seasons

“Yeah, I had the same injury as he did. I know what he is going through. It was mental things I had to get through. Once I got through it, I forgot it.”

—Kafi Thompson, 28, Streeterville, Luvabull for six years

Who's the most annoying player in the league?

“LeBron James. Annoying. I don't like the Heat. He's a drama queen. He could be a Luvabull too.”

—Mallory Babatunde, 24, South Holland

“I would say Kris Humphries. His face is annoying.”

—Pura Sugaduga, 22, Park Ridge

“I don't like LeBron. He's too cocky.”

—Kourtney Davis, 21, Calumet City

1	Now that the Bears have played a preseason game we can all relax knowing Lovie won't mismanage the clock again this year.	... is it too soon to talk about basketball?	... we're no closer to knowing anything about their chances than we were before.	... I'm changing my ATM pin from Bosco to Bostic.	... let the insane browbeating begin! What a great word: "browbeating."
2	What was missing from the Bears' preseason opener?	Jay's attitude. But give it time.	A Jay Cutler injury.	The starters.	A coach who's better at calling horse races than offensive plays.	Me watching it. Too busy browbeating!
3	Jay Cutler has already thrown an interception. Cause for alarm?	Just one? You wait, it's a contract year. We should have 14 more.	Could you repeat that last question? I couldn't hear you from the ledge I'm standing on!	Of course! He also frowned and furrowed his brow. Start McCown!	Sure. But like a car alarm sounding in a parking garage, I choose to ignore it.	Maybe, if you're some kind of GOON. Are you GOONS, Chicago commuters?
4	Why have the Texas Rangers acquired so many Chicago players this season?	Cowboy boots are a no-no on the South Side. Had to go somewhere.	They still haven't figured out deep-dish pizza in the Lone Star State.	They need help getting a reso at Girl & The Goat next time they're in town.	Hopefully they're not Dunn.	Better question: If a hangover were a person, what would it look like?
5	Former Bears offensive coordinator Mike Tice won $100K on horse racing. Discuss.	Mike Tice won something? FINALLY!	I hear he bet the money he got from scalping Super Bowl tickets. Go figure.	He knows a good pick when he sees it—he coached Cutler and Campbell last year.	Tice then tried to scalp his ticket for twice that amount.	He managed a conversion for once? QUICK, HIRE HIM BACK.

TRACY'S TREK

RedEye's Tracy Swartz is on a quest to visit all 32 NFL stadiums before she turns 32. Follow her on Twitter: @tracyswartz.

NEW ENGLAND 31, PHILADELPHIA 22

There's no better place to kick off the NFL season than at Lincoln Financial Field in Philadelphia. Even though it's preseason, Eagles fans still are passionate about their team. Within the first 10 minutes of the first quarter, security had been called twice to my section. Good luck wearing a Tim Tebow shirt here. The stadium is part of a complex that includes the baseball and hockey arenas and a huge bar. The convenience is great. Inside the stadium, though, I thought there would be more food options. Phil up on the Chickie + Pete's crab fries and cheesesteaks because there's not much else. Lincoln Financial marks stadium No. 23 in my quest. Nine more to go this season.

Wood lightens up

Unlike some retired athletes, former Cubs pitcher Kerry Wood has noticeably lost weight since his playing days ended. "It was the traveling," Wood, who hosted a whiffle ball tournament at Wrigley Field on Saturday, told the Tribune's Luis Gomez. "Now there's no more [hotel] minibars or eating at 11:30 p.m. when the game is over." Turn to Page 34 for more from Wood's toumey.

So you're the guy ...

The White Sox's reward for trading outfielder Alex Rios is ... outfielder Leury Garcia. Why should fans be excited? Because he was named by Baseball America as the Fastest Baserunner and Best Infield Arm in the Texas Rangers organization. So, there's that.

He's still taking 'em to school

Michael Jordan can still soar. The 50-year-old Bulls legend reportedly put on a show for campers at his Michael Jordan Flight School last week in Santa Barbara, Calif., proving he still has hops while demonstrating his dunking prowess. We should all be so lucky.

That didn't take long

Usain Bolt (No. 6) regained the world championship in the 100 meters by beating American Justin Gatlin in Moscow on Sunday. Bolt finished in 9.77 seconds, or in other words, less time than it took you to read everything this paragraph twice.

Revenge of the nerds

Four brainy sci-fi flicks to match wits with 'Elysium'

TheWrap.com

"Elysium" has been called a "socialist" blockbuster, thanks to a plot that finds a group of impoverished Earthlings rising up to take on a group of 1-percenters who luxuriate on a posh space station without a care in the world. Star Matt Damon and director Neill Blomkamp insist the film has no political message, but with a plot that echoes the Occupy Wall Street movement, it's clear that "Elysium" has more on its mind than popcorn. Here are four more films that don't ask audiences to check their brains outside the multiplex.

1. The Matrix 1999

Brainy: Few action movies draw on Plato's Allegory of the Cave, Buddhist teachings and the work of theorists like Jean Baudrillard to cook up a futuristic world where machines have created a simulated reality to control humanity.

A Few IQ Points Short of Intelligent: Somebody forgot to tell Keanu Reeves to drop the surfer voice. Also, both "Reloaded" and "Revolutions" weren't thought-provoking — just boring and pretentious.

2. Minority Report 2002

Brainy: Steven Spielberg's thriller focused on a police force that uses a trio of psychics to arrest criminals before they commit crimes. At its heart, the film asks troubling questions about free will and seems to anticipate law-enforcement debates currently taking place in the country involving issues like stop-and-frisk and the widening expansion of government surveillance.

A Few IQ Points Short of Intelligent: The big "reveal" is a howler, and the ending suffers from Spielberg's addiction to syrup.

3. The Fly 1986

Brainy: In the hands of an idiosyncratic auteur like David Cronenberg, "The Fly" became a meditation on the horrors of aging, with many critics drawing parallels between the slow dissolution of the mad scientist played by Jeff Goldblum and the AIDS epidemic that prematurely killed off scores of young men and women during the Reagan era.

A Few IQ Points Short of Intelligent: There are a few cheap shocks, but like "Matrix," the real sin was the moronic sequel the movie spawned, 1989's "The Fly II."

4. Blade Runner 1982

Brainy: Ridley Scott's adaptation of Philip K. Dick's "Do Androids Dream of Electric Sheep?" is a visual feast that did more to establish the look and feel of contemporary science-fiction than perhaps any other film in history. Tucked inside this piece of futuristic noir is a penetrating fable that raises troubling questions about artificial intelligence, the environment and religion.

A Few IQ Points Short of Intelligent: Scott apparently spent more time getting the lighting right than coaxing a compelling performance out of a somnolent Harrison Ford.

'Quick Draw' quick to make vibrator jokes

SHOW PATROL

Curt
Wagner

» @showpatrol

John Lehr and Nancy Hower didn't know a lot about Westerns when they embarked on writing their new Hulu comedy, "Quick Draw." But they dug up comedy gold while researching the Old West.

"It's amazing the stuff that never made it into the Westerns because it was so ridiculous, but it was actually true," Northwestern grad Lehr said by phone from L.A. last week. "We stumbled upon this steam-powered vibrator from the 1800s that I was just like, 'You got to be kidding me!' No, absolutely true. So of course we worked that in immediately."

Obviously well-researched and bawdy, "Quick Draw" is a loose, improvisational show that hits way more than misses. Hulu launched the series Tuesday with the first two episodes; new 23-minute episodes debut every Monday.

Lehr stars as Sheriff John Henry Hoyle, a Harvard-educated lawman who, with his reluctant deputy, Eli (Nicholas Brown), uses the emerging science of forensics and his sharpshooting skills to bring down the Wild West's most dangerous criminals. Unfortunately, what the sheriff has in book smarts

Gin & Pine recipe

- 2 ounces untreated green pine splints
- 1 quart gin
- Soak two hours, then drink

he lacks in common sense, and things often don't go his way.

So far, Hoyle and Eli have crossed paths with outlaw Cole Younger and con artist Pearl Star, two characters Lehr and Hower based upon real historical figures. Monday's third episode, "Mail Order Bride," centers on the Bloody Benders, a factual Kansas family from the 1800s who would book people into their inn just to rob and murder them.

The research that might pay the most dividends, however, has inspired a weekly drinking game for viewers.

"We found these Old Western recipes of drinks ... that are totally ridiculous," said Lehr, whom some fans may remember from his three season on TBS' "10 Items or Less," a comedy he and Hower wrote.

In addition to each week's episode, Lehr and company create a 2-minute "Quick Draw Mixology" video that presents the recipe for a drink like Gin & Pine (see recipe above) and the word—"sheriff" for example—that signals viewers to take a sip.

"These drinks are just horrid; they're just like nasty," Lehr said, laughing. "I don't know what these people were thinking back then."

AMC in search of new wave of hits

TheWrap.com

In 2007, HBO was in transition: "The Sopranos" was wrapping, and two shows that made the premium channel the hottest thing in programming, "Sex and the City" and "Six Feet Under," had already faded to black.

The channel needed to find new "water cooler" shows to replace the ones that had helped kick off television's golden age—or else it risked losing its edge in the fiercely competitive cable landscape.

Today, AMC Networks is in a similar position with its flagship channel. The two shows that critics often mention in the same breath as "The Sopranos"—"Breaking Bad" and "Mad Men"—are looking at the final curtain. "Breaking Bad" began its last season Sunday and "Mad Men" is due to wrap up in 2014.

But AMC Networks President and CEO Josh Sapan assured analysts Thursday that the company is well-positioned to endure the end of Walter White and Sterling Cooper & Partners. In particular, he pointed to the continued strength of "The Walking Dead," which is the top-rated scripted series on TV.

"We hope that zombies really do live forever—or at least for a decade," Sapan said.

To that end, Sapan said the company was actively developing new shows like the cop drama "Low Winter Sun," which premiered this month. He added that AMC has two new series premiering next year—the computer prodigies drama "Halt and Catch Fire" and the Revolutionary War spy thriller "Turn"—that have earned a strong reaction from advertisers.

"Not everything will hit, but we think it's a good moment for us," Sapan said.

The AMC chief, who also oversees the Sundance Channel, We TV and IFC, said the biggest challenge was not that there are more players like Netflix and USA aggressively getting into the original content space. Rather, he said it was finding a show that offered the perfect alchemy of attracting new viewers to AMC at the right price.

"There's not a limited commodity of great TV shows ... our greatest interest and challenge is the identification and development of great content with great people," he said.

Sapan didn't just discuss the future of AMC, he touched upon the future of the TV industry as a whole by wading into the ongoing debate about cable pricing.

Last week, Time Warner CEO Jeff Bewkes said he doubted that cable subscribers would ever be able to pick the channels they want on an a la carte basis. However, he did predict that cable programming will come in smaller packages.

Sapan said he did not know what the future holds for pricing, but argued that AMC's strong sales on platforms like iTunes and content deals with streaming services like Netflix show it has diversified its revenue streams in way that will leave it well-equipped for any new world order.

'Walking Dead'

'Mad Men'

'Breaking Bad'

The best strategy, he stressed, was to "have stuff that people really like, really want, really identify with and really value."

In AMC's case, that means lots of zombies.

Bravo dishes an online appetizer for 'Top Chef'

Los Angeles Times

As fans wait for the new season of "Top Chef," which is set to take place in New Orleans and premieres in October, Bravo has decided to serve them an appetizer. The network will release a six-episode prequel series online, "Padma's Picks," in which longtime "Top Chef" host Padma Lakshmi takes to the streets of the Big Easy to find local talent who will compete for a spot on the cable show.

All six episodes will be released Wednesday at bravotv.com. The winning competitor will advance to "Top Chef: New Orleans."

"Padma's Picks" is unusual because it's solely Lakshmi's vote that will decide the outcome rather than a panel of judges.

"It's more documentary style than 'Top Chef' and is meant to really get people excited about New Orleans," said Lisa Hsia, executive vice president of Bravo Digital.

"Top Chef: New Orleans" will be accompanied by another edition of "Last Chance Kitchen," a digital series that premiered during Season 9. "Last Chance Kitchen" brings back eliminated chefs and gives them another opportunity to prove themselves. The winner has the opportunity to return to that season's "Top Chef" but also must overcome the ingredients that got him or her eliminated the first time around in a quickfire-style challenge.

"'Last Chance Kitchen' was born out of the digital team's challenge to use leftover footage; we needed to create something that was essential to storytelling," Hsia said.

CHICAGO'S TOP CHEFS

While the cast for Season 11 of "Top Chef" has yet to be set, we're excited to see what cheftestants will be cooking up in New Orleans—and whether any Chicagoans will be in the kitchen. Here's a sampling of Chicago's past competitors (and Fabio, who isn't from Chicago, but we had to include) and how they fared. REDEYE

horoscope

ROMANCE PLANET

BY JENNIFER SHEPHERD | READ MORE AT LIPSTICKMYSTIC.COM

Leo July 23-Aug. 22

You'll be attracting interest from multiple directions, thanks to social Mercury. You'll get invited to a cocktail party, an S&M dungeon or an orgy. You'll hear from several people at once who want to date you.

Virgo Aug. 23-Sept. 22

Work is driving you nuts. You need an OK romantic getaway. If a trip is beyond your budget just now, turn off the phone, close the blinds, and pretend that you and your honey are at a resort. The moon says focus on each other.

Libra Sept. 23-Oct. 23

Venus will be in your sign for a few weeks, and this means that your love life might finally make some sense. You're at peace about your recent divorce, separation or break-up. If you're still with your honey, you'll feel more confident about your chemistry together.

Scorpio Oct. 24-Nov. 21

It's getting intense between you and that certain someone. Saturn has you exploring some forbidden fruit. Maybe you're lusting after your best friend's husband or you're fantasizing about dating your boss. Danger carries enormous appeal.

Sagittarius Nov. 22-Dec. 21

Your body and mind are at war. Your body wants someone bad. Your mind, in the meantime, is screaming warnings at you. "Don't date that fugitive from the law even if he is gorgeous!" "Don't hook up with that girl with six kids from six different baby daddies!"

Capricorn Dec. 22-Jan. 19

You're wondering if romance is even worth it anymore. Maybe you've recently been burned by love, or you're hitting a plateau in a long-term relationship and feeling bored. Venus is giving you a serious case of the blahs.

Aquarius Jan. 20-Feb. 18

Venus is creating some weird feelings. You could be realizing that you met the love of your life many years ago, and you let him or her slip through your fingers. Pangs of regret and flashes of panic could accompany your thoughts about this person.

Pisces Feb. 19-March 20

You're pushing to get what you want, thanks to a super-assertive moon. If you've been hoping to seduce someone, you'll come up with a crafty plan to have your way with this cutie. It's time for some sexual strategizing.

Aries March 21-April 19

You're in the mood to get into a little trouble. You'll propose a mad affair to a very married colleague. You'll get in touch with that former flame, the one who drove you to distraction the last time you hit the sheets together. The moon is increasing the lust factor.

Taurus April 20-May 20

Don't say something you're going to regret later. A moon opposition is making you super critical, and you'll be tempted to lash out. But don't tell your honey that she's getting to fat or he's becoming too bald.

Gemini May 21-June 21

Venus is turning you into a poet. You'll compose a dirty limerick for your significant other and leave it under his pillow. You'll craft some sexy text messages and send them to your girlfriend when she's in a business meeting just to make her crazy.

Cancer June 22-July 22

You're considering all your options. Maybe it wasn't such a good idea to move in with a cute guy you met the other night. Maybe you shouldn't be contemplating marriage with a girl who annoys you most of the time.

ALSO SPOTTED ...

- » Ashton Kutcher and Mila Kunis had dinner Friday at Cafe Ba-Ba-Reeba and Saturday at Japonais. Kunis had lunch Tuesday on the patio at Hugo's Frog Bar & Fish House.
- » The New York Yankees' Curtis Granderson brought his teammates, including Derek Jeter and CC Sabathia, Aug. 5 to The Fifty/50, where he is an investor. Granderson visited Roots Handmade Pizza, where he is also an investor, Tuesday, and the Berkshire Room in the Acme Hotel Wednesday.
- » Channing Tatum was spotted Friday at Nellcote and RM Champagne Salon and Saturday at Rockit Bar & Grill.
- » Olympic gold medal-winning snowboarder Shaun White partied Wednesday at Cucee.
- » L.A. Dodgers rising star Yasiel Puig dined Friday with teammates at Bella Notte in West Town.
- » The Boston Celtics' Rajon Rondo and former Bulls stars Dennis Rodman, Scottie Pippen and Charles Oakley all dined, separately, Friday at Tavern on Rush.
- » Jason Priestley dined Thursday at Mercadito. Morena Baccarin—like Priestley, in the Chicago area for Wizard World Chicago Comic Con in Rosemont—dined Friday at Paris Club.
- » Amy Smart hung out Aug. 3 at Hubbard Inn.
- » Virginia Madsen stopped by Drumbar in the Raffaello Hotel on Aug. 4.

THIS WEEK

- » Chris J. Johnson, who stars in the upcoming Chicago-filmed ABC drama "Betrayal," will appear Thursday at Step Up Women's Network's Shine & Dine fundraiser at River East Art Center.

PLAY BALL!

THE STARS COME OUT FOR WOOD'S WIFFLE BALL FUNDRAISER

ABOUT LAST NIGHT

Luis Gomez

» @aboutluisgomez

Rather than use a plastic whiffle ball bat like everyone else who faced off against retired Cubs pitcher Kerry Wood on Saturday during Woody's Wiffle Ball Classic at Wrigley Field, former WWE champion CM Punk briefly opted for a folding chair, not unlike the steel ones wrestlers use to knock out opponents. And why not? The point of the celebrity game was to entertain the fans watching from the bleachers while also raising money for the Wood Family Foundation.

Sure, it looked like Punk's teammate Bill Murray was taking the exhibition seriously, especially since he held on to his squad's lineup sheet nearly the entire game and made another teammate run a lap, but he did so mostly for the amusement of those around him.

"When Bill Murray jumps on board and Matthew Perry jumps on board, that helps," Wood said about the celeb lineup. "It also speaks volumes for what this stadium means to people, whether they live here or not."

What was DeWyze's reaction when he learned that the benefit—which replaced Wood's annual Strike Zone Celebrity Bowling Tournament—would be a whiffle ball game this time around?

"Awesome," said DeWyze, who sang the national anthem before the game and held on to the ball from his at-bat as a memento. "I grew up playing whiffle ball in the backyard a lot. To be able to do it here is awesome."

The game gave Aimee Garcia a minuscule glimpse of what she can expect Monday, when the "Dexter" star is scheduled to throw out the first pitch at the Cubs game at Wrigley Field.

"I told Kerry Wood I'm mortified and really nervous, and he gave me some pointers," Garcia said. Asked if she knows how "Dexter," which is in its final season, will end, she responded: "No idea. I've tried to get it out of Michael C. Hall multiple times [but] the man knows how to keep a secret. They're so sneaky sometimes. They'll film alternate endings or won't put endings in the script, so we're in the dark like everyone else."

red hot PERRY TALE

Here comes Katy Perry! The first single off her new album, "Prism," will be released Monday as planned, billboard.com reports, though it was passed out to radio stations early after it leaked Saturday. Here's the question: Will "Prism," due Oct. 22, become the blockbuster she had with "Teenage Dream"?

THE DIGIT

$30.5 MILLION

That's how much "Elysium" liberated from the domestic box office in its debut weekend to finish No. 1, Reuters reports. "We're the Millers" debuted at No. 2 with $26.6 million.

Health scare

Chris Brown had a seizure Friday, though he was not hospitalized, and his rep blamed it on stress. "[Brown's] doctor ... attributes the [non-epileptic seizure] to intense fatigue and extreme emotional stress, both due to the continued onslaught of unfounded legal matters and the nonstop negativity," his rep said in a statement, according to latimes.com. OK then.

A happier ending

"Finding Dory" is finding a new ending. The New York Times reports. The sequel to "Finding Nemo," due out in 2015. Initially was to end in a marine park, but producers are shifting gears after the documentary "Blackfish" has created outrage over the treatment of orcas in captivity.

Like magic

Apparently a movie doesn't have to feature superheroes or giant explosions to get a sequel. The magic/heist-themed "Now You See Me," which has raked in $230 million so far worldwide, is in line for a follow-up, vulture.com reports. No word yet whether stars like Jesse Eisenberg, Isla Fisher and Dave Franco will be back on board. The most important question: Will they call it "Now You Don't"?

I want to make a country album, a Christmas album, a gospel album.”

—Robin Thicke, to The Associated Press, on his next move. "I'm ready to make four albums right now," he said.

Engaged!

Here's something for the yearbook: "High School Musical" star Ashley Tisdale is engaged! Christopher French popped the question Thursday. Tisdale's rep confirmed to people.com. That would explain this tweet from her account: "Best night of my life. We're on top of the world."
